BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS RHINE DEEPENED

COLLEGE CITY OF BONN NOW IN U. S. HANDS

CASUALTIES LIGHT; NAZI TRAINEES PROVE FLOP

BY HOWARD COWAN

Bonn, Germany, March 9 (AP)—American doughboys cleared this seat of German culture to the banks of the Rhine today after a short fight, sharply accentuated by resistance of troops in a German replacement center who had only to march from the barracks to get into their first battle.

They flunked their test.

"They just had to march from the barracks to get in their first battle," said Maj. Sam Carter of 5 Lake Ave., North Attleboro, Mass., an officer with the "Fighting First" Division which cleared most of the city.

He said it was all over at one o'clock this afternoon.

But the resistance of these Nazi troops prolonged the battle for the city a couple of hours after the First Division started popping away at the replacement center and its commandant ordered its garrison to battle.

Artillery Scatters Troops

"They were pretty hard to handle because of the model positions they had dug for schooling. But we took care of them in a couple of hours. About 100 surrendered," said Maj. Carter.

Though the Germans put up more fight than they did at Cologne, casualties were extremely light. They came mostly from a rip roaring artillery duel fought by opposing forces across the Rhine, long after the last Nazi in Bonn had given up.

After the city's streets were cleared to the river, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodge's men took up positions from which they could observe everything on the opposite bank.

Late in the afternoon two tugs were seen getting up steam. They headed up river in the direction of the Remagen bridgehead. Later a colum of troops started winding down toward the tugs—about 200. American artillery scattered the Germans and then got direct hits which wrecked both vessels.

Maxie Gets Swastikas

A Calypso singing Jewish lad from New York's Bronx talked the mayor out of swastika flags which flew from the top of city hall.

"It was respectable scrounging," insisted Capt. Maxie Zera, First Division public relations officer. "I told him I wanted a flag, and whadda ya know? He brings me all three—with the poles."

A Nazi colonel, who stared icily from pale, blue eyes, was using a telephone when he was taken. He was charged with defending the north edge of the city.

"I was calling higher headquarters to report that tanks had broken through when one of your very brave soldiers stuck a pistol in my back," he said, explaining his capture.

A 21-year-old girl who had been in the German army six years also was taken. Six other Wehrmachtmen confessed they didn't care much if they were

Flood Waters Fall Along Ohio Valley; No Disaster As Yet

Cincinnati, March 9 (AP)— The Ohio Valley began to write off the Ohio river's 1945 floor tonight as one of major caliber but far from a disaster.

The 981-mile river had crested at its one danger point—Portsmouth—was falling at many upriver points, and was expected to crest tonight or tomorrow at most places below Louisville except at the mouth.

At Cairo, Ill., a rise in the Mississipi was expected to push the Ohio up to perhaps a 54-foot stage, a foot or so higher than today's mark and 14 feet above flood stage. Cairo is protected to 60 feet by a floodwall.

Volunteers and state guardsmen working under army engineers held out the Ohio and tributary Scioto rivers at Portsmouth with a hastily built 2,-800-foot levee of sandbags, keeping just inches ahead of the waters before they crested there at 64.94 early today.

Officers warned the pressure against the levee now was greatest and it still could break.

A seven-foot fall to 23 feet, two below flood, at Pittsburgh encouraged residents of scores of upriver villages and towns to count on early return to lowland homes.

At Cincinnati, where the crest came Wednesday night at 69.2 feet, 17.2 above flood stage, engineers started to repair a temporarily levee supplementing a partially finished barrier dam across the mouth of Millcreek and guarding the factories up the Millcreek valley.

BRIGGS FACTORY STRIKE SETTLED

Return To Work Voted For 13,000 Employes Idle In Walkout

Detroit, March 9 (AP)—Resumption of war production Monday in seven plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., closed for eight days by a strike of 13,000 employes, was voted tonight at a meeting of the strikers.

The workers, who twice previously rejected back-to-work proposals, agreed by a 10 to 1 margin to terminate the work stoppage, which had tied up output of plane assemblies and other war material, after hearing pleas that they return to their benches from officers of the local and international union.

More than 2,500 unionists attended the meeting.

Elsewhere on the Detroit labor front, a one-day strike of 3,000 workers at Graham-Paige Motors, Inc., ended today as Local 142 UAW-CIO agreed to negotiate the differences with the company. The walkout centered about the time allowed for washing-up by employes, the union claiming 15 minutes and the company asserting five was the maximum.

The International UAW-CIO executive board announced at New York that officers of Dodge Local 3 had been "severely condemned" for their part in a recent work stoppage at the Dodge main plant of Chrysler Corporation.

No-Strike Pledge Retained By UAW

Detroit, March 9 (AP)—Members bers of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) have voted to retain the union's no-strike pledge, Ben Garrison, chairman of a referendum committee of the international union, said tonight.

Garrison said rough estimates of some 300,000 ballots, which have been sorted into "yes" and "no" piles, indicated a possible two-to-one support for the pledge.

After the referendum was authorized last fall at the union's international convention at Grand Rapids, Mich., the committee mailed out some 1,200,000 ballots to members of the Union in war plants throughout the United States and Canada, and to members on leave in the armed services.

FOOD PURCHASE SCANDLE HINTED

Republicans Hear About Huge Profits Made In Grain Market

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, March 9. (AP)—Congress and the capital wondered tonight whether they have a government scandal on their hands.

Republican congressmen said that persons with inside information on Commodity Credit corporation food purchase plans, have made huge profits in the grain market.

One of the Republicans, Rep. Taber (N. Y.) said the situation "transcends Teapot Dome." This was the oil lease scandal of the 20's, which broke a number of reputations, made several shining reputations for prosecutors and provided Democrats with a great arsenal of political ammunition. There hasn't been anything quite like it since.

The CCC head, Frank Hancock said the agency's own investigations have been going on since the first of the year. He told reporters three unidentified employes have been separated from their jobs.

Red Skelton Weds And Loses Tonsils

The comedian, on a 14-day furlough from the army, plans to enter a hospital tonight to have his tonsils removed

WEARY BERLIN BOMBED AGAIN

Assault By U. S. Bombers Followed Up By RAF Mosquitos

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

London, March 9 (AP)—The biggest force of RAF Mosquitos ever sent to Berlin dumped more than 1,000 tons of explosives on the battered capital tonight after a thousand U. S. heavy bombers had smashed by daylight at the central German rail junction of Kassel. It was the 18th consecutive night attack on Berlin.

Enemy planes, the German radio warned, were over Brandenburg province, in which Berlin is located, early in the night and another force was crossing western Germany.

The Eighth Airforce, which sent 1,000 Fortresses and Liberators on a many-pronged attack during the day, lost 10 bombers and five escorting fighters in the operations. The RAF lost three bombers out of about 1,000 which smacked Kassel last night.

Heavy bombers from Italy joined today's attacks, striking communications systems at Graz in southern Austria while fighter bombers hit at rail targets from Vienna to Italy.

Prosecutor Called Hypocrite In Bribe Conspiracy Trial

Mason, Mich., March 9 (AP)—Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler and two former legislators, both defendants in the naturopathy graft conspiracy trial, clashed briefly today when one of the defendants called the prosecutor a "hypocrite" and the other accused Sigler of threatening him.

Francis J. Nowak, Detroit Democrat convicted last summer in another graft conspiracy case, asserted in court that Sigler had threatened him "in Judge Carr's court." (Judge Leland W. Carr is the one-man grand juror investigating corruption in state government.) Nowak said there was a dispute over witness fees, and that Sigler had told him, "I'd pay for this."

Sigler, replying angrily, said, "Yes—I said I'd name you in every warrant in which you were guilty, and I told you to tell the truth."

William G. Buckley, also convicted last summer, testifying today denied taking any money in the naturopathy case, said he wouldn't "confess to anything I'm innocent of," and when Sigler accused him of making "flowery speeches," shouted "You hypocrite." Sigler, resting his cross-examination, told the jury "I just wanted you to see what kind of a man he is."

Marquette Lifer Hangs In Bedsheet

Stevens was sentenced from Bay county in July, 1940, to a life term for robbery armed, his fourth felony conviction.

SOVIETS SET FOR RUSH TO NAZI CAPITAL

FORTRESS ON ODER RIVER FALLS IN PRELUDE

BY ROMNEY WHEELER

London, Mar. 9 (AP)— The Germans said tonight that Red army shock troops had crashed into the heart of Kuestrin and captured part of that Oder river fortress town 38 miles east of Berlin in a roaring prelude to the battle for the Nazi capital.

In the north spearheads of three Soviet armies were reported battling in the suburbs of Stettin, Pomeranian capital. The Germans announced the loss of Greifenhagen, east bank Oder crossing town 11 miles south of Stettin, main port for Berlin.

Far to the northeast five or six Soviet armies were closing swiftly on surrounded Danzig, having pierced the outer defenses of that former free city. Albert Forster, Nazi gauleiter, again called on civilians and soldiers to fight to the death.

Fuehrer Jabs Morale

None of these enemy reports was confirmed by Moscow, but Premier Stalin announced in an order of the day the fall of Stolp, nine-way Pomeranian junction and stronghold 63 miles west of Danzig. Stolp was one of the last few enemy strongholds left in Pomerania east of the Oder. Other Soviet forces were reported only 10 miles outside Danzig on the southwest.

Heavy fighting raged from Kienitz, west bank village 10 miles northwest of Kuestrin, down to the area west of Lebus. 11 miles south of Kuestrin, enemy broadcasts said, and Adolf Hitler a few days ago visited the Oder front on a morale-raising tour.

The German DNB agency said that Soviet troops had been thrown back from Seelow, 10 miles west of the Oder and 25 miles from Berlin, after penetration to that town on Thursday. Seelow, an important road junction, is 11 miles southwest of embattled Kuestrin.

Michigan Fugitive Sought In Killing Of Red-Head Woman

Washington, Mar. 9 (AP)—Detective Chief Robert J. Barrett said tonight that he would swear out a murder warrant tomorrow against Joseph Medley, a fugitive from Southern Michigan prison at Jackson, Mich., in connection with the death of red-haired, attractive Mrs. Nancy Boyer, 45.

He described Medley as an ex-convict who also is wanted for questioning in the bathtub deaths of women in New Orleans and Chicago.

Barrett called a special news conference tonight to say that:

Medley had been introduced to Mrs. Boyer, who lived in ritzy Washington House, last Friday. Mrs. Boyer was with Medley several times, and on Monday night the two were members of a card game at her apartment. The game broke up early Tuesday morning, and tests showed she was killed sometime between 5 and 8 a. m. that morning. Her body was not discovered until last night.

Barrett said Medley also is being sought for questioning in connection with the deaths of Miss Laura Fischer, 28, a New York textile worker, whose nude body was found in the De Soto hotel, New Orleans, on Christmas eve, and Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, 38, a telephone operator, found in the Atlantic Hotel, Chicago, Feb. 17.

Sea Water Makes Good Army Bread

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—Development of a new type bread baked with sea water and with salt omitted from the ingredients was announced today by the army's Chicago quartermaster depot.

The bread was developed by LA Owen N. Tucker of (3337 Yates Ave.) Denver, Colo., as a result of the invasion of Africa. It is intended for use on beachheads and other emergenecies when fresh water is not available.

The quartermasters explained calcium hypochloride is added to the recipe and salt omitted. The product, according to officers, is virtually impossible to distinguish from fresh-water bread.

Lt. Tucker was presented with a scroll of honor today at a luncheon given by the Pillsbury Mills in recognition of his development.

CRASH INJURES 60

New York, Mar. 9 (AP)—At least 60 persons were injured shortly after 6 p. m. (EWT) tonight when a trolley car went out of control on the Brooklyn bridge, crashed into a pole and overturned at the Manhattan end.

Two U.S. Armies Trap 50,000 In Remagen Smash

By Austin Bealmear

Paris, March 9. (AP)—The U. S. First army drove probably more than five miles east of the Rhine today after smashing the first tank-led counter-attack at its Remagen bridgehead, and to the south trapped an estimated 50,000 Germans by linking up with the Third army.

Men, guns, tanks and supplies poured into the expanding bridgehead 28 miles south of Cologne across the great Ludendorff bridge, officially disclosed to have been taken intact.

Berlin Dash Expected

German planes in ones, twos and threes tried repeatedly to knock out the bridge during the day, but were shot down or driven off by alert anti-aircraft gunners guarding what for the moment is the key to the whole battle against Germany on the west.

Supreme headquarters blacked out the scope of the advance, but it was possible that a breakout on the road to Berlin might be disclosed at any hour.

(A Blue network correspondent broadcast from the front that the bridgehead had been doubled in size and width since yesterday and that "a number of towns and villages" had been captured.)

Bonn, Rhineland city of 101,000 fell to the First army north of the middle Rhine bridgehead, and the Third army to the south battled within four miles of the traffic center of Coblenz after sweeping the enemy from the Coblenz plain west of the Rhine.

Bad Day For Hitler

On one of the blackest days for Germany since Hitler plunged Europe into the second World War within a generation, the Allies handed the enemy more bad news by disclosing that the U. S. 15th army now was on the western front at an undisclosed sector.

Under Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, a corps commander on

Butcher Boy Leads Charge Into Germany

BY DON WHITEHEAD

On the Rhine Bridgehead, March 9 (AP)—A gangling embarrassed butcher boy from Holland, Ohio, received the praise today of his commanding general for leading the heroic charge across Remagen bridge and completing the capture of the span which gave the U. S. First Army the first Allied bridgehead across the Rhine.

A careful check disclosed that Sgt. Alexander A. Drabik actually was the first American to step on the east bank of the Rhine. And behind him came ten riflemen shooting as they ran in a wild dash which surprised the Germans before they could blow this vital link which right now is perhaps the most valuable bridge in the world.

This takes none of the glory from Lt. Emmet Burrows, Jersey City officer whose platoon was in the fight also and helped capture Remagen bridge.

Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge, of Lexington, Mo., praised Drabik's heroism as the greatest single factor in establishing the bridgehead and singled him out as the man who deserved the most individual credit. It was Hoge's combat "command B" which took the bridge.

CAVES CLEARED OUT ON LUZON

Landing Of Americans On Mindanao Claimed By Tokyo

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Luzon, Saturday, Mar. 10 (AP)—Silent on Japanese reports that Allied forces have landed, under protection of two task forces on Mindanao in the southern Philippines, General Douglas MacArthur today reported the Yanks have broken into the Shimbu defense line east of Manila.

MacArthur said the first (dismounted) Cavalry Division and the Sixth Infantry Division have made substantial gains on the south flank of the defense-studded line in the vicinity of Bayanbayanan.

Outlets Blown Up

"A cave normally consists of a 10-foot shaft large enough for a man to climb up or down a rope ladder," MacArthur said in emphasizing the difficulty of the operation.

"At the foot of the shaft, a small tunnel leads to a compartment some 20 by 30 feet. Four or five lateral tunnels lead from the compartment. Just before a lateral reaches the surface of the hill, it makes a sharp bend to prevent shells from entering the tunnel."

In the past 48 hours, 137 such caves have been taken and 446 outlets blownup "with practically no loss" to the Americans.

The method of attack has been to confine the enemy with air and artillery saturation bombardments, then to send forward small demolition groups with flame throwers, white phosphorous and demolition grenades.

NIPPONESE CAUGHT BY SURPRISE; BIG FIRES RAGE

21st Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam, Saturday, March 10. (AP)—A force of more than 300 American B-29s bombed Tokyo in a surprise raid before daylight today, leaving the capital in "conflagration."

Bombing was visual, in clear weather.

The raid, the heaviest yet made by the Superforts, caught the enemy capital by surprise.

The B-29s, flying from their bases on Tinian, Saipan and Guam in the Marianas, attacked soon after midnight (Tokyo time) in their second night appearance over the city.

Industrial Areas Hit

It was the first announced all-incendiary raid by the sky giants. The bombing force exceeded by more than 100 planes the number participating in last Sunday's record strike at the enemy capital.

The bomb load also was the heaviest ever dropped on Tokyo, exceeding a thousand tons. There was some speculation that the total may have reached 1,500 tons.

Targets of this heavy thrust at Tokyo, the 12th attack by the B-29s since their Saipan base was inaugurated last November, were industrial areas.

The Tokyo radio acknowledged earlier that the city had been attacked, saying there were "some fires" in "residential sections" caused by "indiscriminate bombing."

These were being fought, the broadcast added, "by our government and civilians * * * in order to limit the damages to the smallest possible degree."

Fire Breaks Fail

"There is a conflagration in Tokyo tonight," said Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May after checking the raid's progress and first reports. He had stayed up all night at headquarters.

The target assigned and hit by the massive force was an area of 10 square miles in the center of Tokyo. It contains scores of small industries, factories and other military targets and a population of about 1,000,000.

It is considered the most congested area in the capital. In character it varies from sections comparable to a downtown business section in an American city, with administration buildings and many important business houses, to tightly packed residences.

Fire breaks, cut through the section in anticipation of incendiary raids, apparently failed to stop the spread of the flames.

The weather over the city during the 90-minute attack was a complete contrast to the heavy overcast and obscuring fog which forced B-29s to rely on precision instruments in the last two raids, March 4 and Feb. 25.

At headquarters, General Le May followed intently the reports of the earliest fliers leaving the target.

"Small fires," said the first to

LABOR BLAMED FOR PLANT LAG

Unions In Detroit Area Accused Of Trying To Run Factories

Detroit, March 9 (AP) — R. J. Thomas, international president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) union, accused automotive industry executives today of "sacrificing war requirements to preparations for a quick grab at post war civilian sales."

Testifying before a Senate subcommittee investigating utilization of manpower in the Detroit area, Thomas asserted that a "clear focus on today's wartime problems has been blurred by the image of pre-war industrial strife or prospect of post war competitive struggle."

Thomas appeared at the committee hearings after George Romney, executive director of the automotive council for war production had read a statement in which he alleged that labor was responsible for a 25 to 50 per cent reduction in productive efficiency in the car industry and that the union was seeking to usurp management functions.

Romney testified that there was no overall labor shortage in the Detroit area, and that if there was any hoarding of labor in the area it was the result of a conspiracy between employer and employee. He asserted also that management in the industry never had agreed that the Detroit area was a "critical labor area." Its classification as such, he said, had kept many war contracts out of the area and impaired its war effort.

Ziegler Opens New Detroit Expressway

Detroit, March 9 (AP)—The $26,-000,000 Detroit industrial expressway, from Michigan and Wyoming avenues to the Willow Run bomber plant, was opened today with brief ceremonies.

State Highway Commisioner Charles M. Ziegler snipped a tape to signalize the formal opening of the new highway and at a luncheon meeting hailed the expressway as "Michigan's contribution to highway construction."

Henry Ford II, executive vice-president of the Ford Motor company, joined with state and county officials and other Ford officials in attendance at the dedication program.

STRIKE VOTE OPPOSED

Washington, March 9 (AP) — The Southern Coal Producers association, employing one-third of John L. Lewis' mine workers, petitioned the NLRB today to halt plans for a strike vote among the miners March 28.

AGED RECLUSE DIES IN WOODS

Body Of Dan Kitts, 70, Is Found In Shack Near Fairport

Believed to have been dead for about a week and with the face badly chewed by rats, the body of Dan Kitts, 70, a recluse, was found yesterday noon in his shack near Fairport.

Leslie Birk, Fairport store proprietor and Kitts' guardian, found the body sprawled partly off the bed in the two-room shack where Kitts had lived as a recluse for many years. Birk told officers that he had not seen Kitts for several days and decided to investigate.

Undersheriff John Fredrickson and Coroner Kevill Murphy investigated the death and assisted in bringing the body out to the highway on a sled. The officers said they believed Kitts had been dead about a week.

Birk told officers that Kitts suffered from a heart ailment. This and his advanced age was the cause of death. The body was taken to the Allo funeral home in Escanaba.

Little is known of Kitts. It is believed that he was born in Ohio. He had lived for many years as a recluse near Fairport. He has no known relatives, although the officers were informed that he may have a niece living in Manistique.

Two U. S. Armies Trap 50,000 In Remagen Smash

D-day, the new 15th gave Gen. Eisenhower nine armies—five of them American—for the showdown battles of Germany.

The Germans counter-attacked Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army bridgehead in force for the first time today with elements of an armored division, but were hurled back. It was estimated that the bridgehead now was 10 or more miles wide.

Obviously, the German high command was marshalling all available forces to attempt to drive the Americans into the Rhine. Allied heavy bombers carried out two obliteration raids on Kassel, a rail city 110 miles east of the bridgehead, to keep enemy communications snarled.

Supplies Piled Up

It was considered likely here that the Americans were well over five miles beyond the river, for field dispatches told of the Americans boring steadily deeper into Germany while mountains of supplies, and strong reinforcements were built up to the rear.

More than 48 hours after the crossings, supreme headquarters took the wraps off the story of the bridgehead — one of the most dramatic of the war — and disclosed that daring American troops seized the Ludendorff double-track road and railway bridge intact at Remagen.

They then speared across the stream and captured a town on the superhighway leading northeastward to the Ruhr basin.

While the Ninth armored division, which took the bridge, exploited its advantage today, other First army forces sped eight and 12 miles farther south and met the Third army's 11th armored division at Brohl and at the Rhine ferry of Andernach, which has a population of 10,000.

Third army troops moved so swiftly for this junction that they captured a general and his staff at Andernach, took 4,000 prisoners along its front and seized such huge quantities of booty that a front dispatch said it probably would take days to estimate it.

No Time For Defense

Supreme headquarters let it be told that the bridge fell Wednesday to Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard's Ninth armored division after a sensational 25-mile dash from Euskirchen at such high speed that the Germans had no time to organize a defense.

Even as the first Americans ran boldly out on the bridge at 3:50 p. m.—10 minutes before the enemy planned to blow it—waiting Germans threw the plunger that touched off one batch of explosives and caused superficial damage.

Before the Germans could try again, wires had been ripped, armored infantry had stormed across, hundreds of Germans threw down their arms, and the Americans seized a 300-foot bluff at the eastern end of the bridge.

First east bank town to fall was Erpen, across the Rhine from Remagen and on a superhighway leading northeastward toward the munitions factories of the Ruhr basin.

Associated Press Correspondent Howard Cowan told for the first time how the Ludendorff bridge was captured with the intrepid Americans expecting it to blow up in their faces at any minute.

Seconds after infantry led by Lt. Emmett J. Burrows captured the bridge in the midst of explosions designed to destroy it, tanks of the Ninth armored division were racing across. Wires were ripped from explosives attached to the bridge while it was under fire.

Company A of the 26th armored infantry, commanded by Lt. Karl Timmerman, West Point, Neb., was the first to reach the east bank.

Staff officers said that in 48 hours tanks and infantry established a firm hold on the east bank and were driving deeper inland as streams of supplies and reinforcements hurried across.

Road Strike Continues; Only Two Return To Work

The Tuesday morning walkout of union employes of the Delta county road commission continued today, with only two workers reporting back for reinstatement yesterday as directed by the commission, it was reported last night by J. T. Sharpensteen, county road superintendent.

Now entering its fifth day, the strike today appeared farther from settlement than before.

Refusal of the union employes to heed the ultimatum of the commission to report for work at 4:30 yesterday afternoon or lose the opportunity for reinstatement apparently widened the rift between the commission and the union.

Although it was reported at the main garage at Wells at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon that none of the strikers had reported back for work, Sharpensteen said last night that two had come back. One reported back at the Rapid River garage, the other at Wells.

Sharpensteen stressed the point that the commission has not discharged the employes who participated in the work stoppage.

"In walking off the job they quit. They were given until 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to report back for work or lose the opportunity for reinstatement," Sharpensteen said.

The number of union workers participating in the strike has been given by Sharpensteen as 30. Arnold Alsten, business representative of the union (Chauffeurs and Teamsters Union, Local 328) placed the total at 37.

The dispute which brought on the strike was whether the road commission would recognize the union. It is the commission's claim that it cannot recognize the union without violating the law as established by an opinion of the attorney general in 1941. Recognition of the union "by gentlemen's agreement or otherwise" had been recommended to the commission by the county board of supervisors in January.

At the deadline hour set by the commission for the strikers to report for work there was no indication of unrest at the main garage and office at Wells.

About 20 of the union men participating in the walkout were in the recreation room at the garage playing cards and smoking. There was no picketing in progress outside. Since the walkout started Tuesday the men have returned to the garage during their former working hours.

Yesterday evening Alsten said that he had not yet received notice from the Michigan labor mediation board whether it would intercede in the dispute and attempt its settlement. Alsten Wednesday by telegraph had requested the board to intercede.

captured. They were pretty disgusted with war.

For three years the prisoners had tended the "Bonn deception board"—a dummy set up intended to fool RAF night bombers into thinking a thinking a trick lighting pattern in the woods outside the city was Bonn. When the raiders approached one pulled a switch, lighting up the dummy city. The other five grabbed buckets of water and ran to the woods to put out fires to be caused by the bombs.

In those three years there were plenty of raids. The lights went on every time and the bucket brigade rushed to the woods. But every time the bombs fell on Bonn, they said—"even after we used sparklers and colored lights."

Tire Material Ceilings Reduced

Prices for tire boots, patches and reliners made from scrap materials will be substantially reduced by new dollar-and-cent celing prices established on sales of these items in the United States and its territories and possessions by the Office of Price Administration.

At the retail level, the reductions will generally range from 10 to 33 1-3 per cent. The new ceilings will be effective on March 27, 1945, in the U. S. and on May 11, 1945, in the territories and possessions of the U. S.

For reliners, the main item in this group, the new retail ceilings will be $2.50 each for all uncemented passenger car tire reliners, and $2.75 each for all cemented passenger car tire reliners. Maximum charges permitted for inserting a passenger car tire reliner are 50 cents without cementing, $1 for cementing a cemented reliner, and $1.25 for cementing an uncemented reliner.

Truck tire reliners will have retail ceiling prices ranging from $3.00 to $12.90 each, depending on size and ply. Maximum charges permitted for inserting a truck tire reliner range from 50c to $2.60.

Retail ceilings for boots and patches range from 7c to $3.75 each, depending on size and ply. Maximum charges for cementing a patch or boot are 15c for the smaller sizes and 35c for the larger sizes.

SEEDED TEAMS WIN IN GOLF

BY WILBUR JENNINGS

Miama, Fla., March 9 (AP)—Little Ben Hogan's bid for an upset fell short today, and the four seeded teams all moved into the semi-final round of the $7,500 International Four Ball Golf tournament.

Hogan and his partner, big Ed Dudley, ran afoul the golfing magic of Byron Nelson and Harold McSpaden and were ousted by a 4 and 3 count.

The first-ranked combination, and McSpaden, carded a seven-under-par 63 on the morning 18—with the help of a second nine 30— and went to lunch four up.

Second-seeded Sammy Snead and Bob Hamilton, PGA champion, also had a morning round of 63, and went ont to thrash Craig Wood and Tony Penna, 4 and 3. Snead had an eagle three on the 460-yard 13th hole for the second day in a row.

The opponents for Nelson and McSpaden tomorrow will be Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, winners of the International event in 1935, 36 and 37. They scored a 4 and 3 triumph today over Chick Rutan and Claude Harmon—and fired a 63 this morning to to show that they are on their game.

Winning the right to meet Snead and Hamilton tomorrow, Sammy Byrd and Denny Shute eliminated the darkhorse team of Frank Strazza and Joe Zarhardt, 3 and 2.

GAS COUPONS STOLEN

Lansing, March 9 (AP)—Lansing police said today that burglars had escaped with ration coupons representing about 2,500 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil and $1,200 in cash and checks after breaking open a safe at Cities Service Oil Company headquarters and another safe at Socony-Vacuum Oil Company.

CLINIC FOR VETERANS

There has been a lot of talk and promises of what we civilians will do for our returning "heroes," the boys who were "half-grown "youngsters," sent out to face the horrors and handicaps of war—horrors they had never dreamed could exist.

Our boys returning from these horrors do not wish to be treated as paupers. They do not want "just a job" offered or promised them in return for the sacrifices they have willingly made. These lads have faced the madness of war, trying to make some sense of it, to find something in it greater than blind stupidity and base brutality.

Are you one of the civilians with him in this difficult job? Are you struggling too, trying to restore and retain some of the lost beauty and dignity of life as so many of the boys are doing?

Then how could there be an incident occurring as did recently in Escanaba. Can't we have a little phychological approach and understanding in our "rehabilitation" of psycho-neurotic servicemen. Perhaps it would be a good thought to educate some of our law enforcement officials in "handling" of ill-adjusted veterans. We realize we have laws and rules to abide by for the comfort and protection of all of us but what many fail to realize there also is an understanding, a psychiatric approach that can be used in punishing those who have broken the laws.

Let us all work for an understanding and realization of the confusion, despair and bewilderment of our returned wounded. We should know by now, a strong arm, brute assertion of authority, does not always win. Our boys are proving it "over there" to our Axis enemies.

Why not a "clinic for civilians. an effort understand the problems facing a veteran returning to civilian life." Let us help him by understanding him; let's not just offer him a job—he is not a pauper. He isn't asking for a job; he wants our understanding and help. Let's help him to adjust himself to a normal life again.

Haegg's Leg Is Sore, Can't See Victory Tonight

New York, March 9 (AP) — Gunder Haegg, Swedish miler who still holds six world records, has developed a pair of sore legs and doesn't believe he will be able to win tomorrow night's Columbian mile in Madison Square Garden.

"My legs ache and I do not believe I can beat Rafferty yet," said the gaunt Gunder today after completing his workout in Central Park.

The Haegg leg trouble apparently is a muscular condition, acquired a week ago when Gunder pushed himself through a 4:31 mile on the Garden boards only 50 hours after reaching the United States.

Haakan Lidman, Haegg's traveling partner, bopped his knee on a hurdle last Saturday and also isn't up to par but expects to run in the Knights of Columbus races.

The program of service to the members of the armed forces overseas has been praised by many Delta county servicemen in letters they write home to their parents.

Sgt. William Carey, 22, writes his mother, Mrs. George L. Kieser of Ford River Road, that the Red Cross is providing "wonderful accommodations "for the boys in France. He has been overseas for 16 months, and has seen service in England and France.

On Feb. 20, being near Paris, he went there for two days and it was through the Red Cross club that he was provided with accommodations for a shave, shower, a swim and a bed. And it was also in the Red Cross club in Paris that he met Myles McMartin of Escanaba, who also is in service overseas.

Sgt. Carey also told in previous letters of the work of the Red Cross in the field. At Christmastime a Red Cross clubmobile visited the field to give the boys recorded music, and coffee and doughnuts served by Red Cross girls—"American girls with real American charm."

Another serviceman, T/5 Edward Bartoz, son of Mrs. Mike Slaga of Perronville, recently home on convalescent leave, told his story first hand to workers at Red Cross headquarters in Escanaba.

"The Red Cross is doing a swell job over there," he declared, and then described some of the services which he had received. After 12 months in England he was with invasion forces that entered France, and there right after D-Day he found the Red Cross clubmobiles dispensing coffee and doughnuts. In England the Red Cross clubs provided "American" food at cost price to the Yanks weary of English "fish and chips."

Wounded in the battle of Metz, Oct. 4, 1944, as light tanks making up his unit crossed the Moselle river into Luxembourg, T/5 Bartoz was brought back to Paris on a stretcher.

A Red Cross girl offering him gum and cigarettes was the first thing he remembers. He was hospitalized in Paris and later sailed from England on Christmas Eve, arriving in the States in January.

"I'll never forget the Red Cross —or Verdun, Amiens, Nancy and all the other French towns we fought our way through," Bartoz added.

Pvt. Edward Lacomb Of Escanaba Repays Debt By Donating His Blood

Pvt. Edward J. Lacomb, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lacomb, 329 South Tenth street, who recently returned from overseas, was the subject of a news article, including a two-column picture, in the Mar. 3 issue of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which revealed that Pvt. Lacomb made a blood donation at the Red Cross Service Center in repayment of blood plasma which saved his life in Sicily when Pvt. Lacomb was seriously wounded.

The article follows:

"Pvt. Edward J. Lacomb of Escanaba, Mich., stationed at Jefferson Barracks after two years of service overseas, had to wait more than a year to repay the debt he believes he owes to all fighting men, but he repaid it in full and in kind yesterday.

"When Pvt. Lacomb was lying seriously wounded in a field hospital in Sicily and was about to receive a transfusion, he heard a doctor say, 'This is going to save your life.' Then and there Lacomb decided he would donate blood as soon as he was able. After a period of long hospitalization in Italy and the United States prevented him from fuifilling his promise until yesterday when he presented himself at the Red Cross Blood Donor Service Center at 1006 Olive street.

"Lacomb was a member of an Engineer unit which was building a bridge when a sniper's bullet struck him.

"By the time medical corpsmen got me to the hospital I was weak from loss of blood and shock,' he said. 'Everything was hazy until they gave me plasma. My body began to tingle then—just like a foot that has gone to sleep. Soon that feeling passed away and I felt normal again. I can't do enough to repay that anonymous donor who give the blood yhich saved my life, but I can give my blood for the boys who need and will be needing it.'

"Lacomb, 31 years old, has a brother, S 2/c Donald Lacomb, who was killed in action. Lacomb has been in service nine years."

TAXPAYER OBJECTS

Why should we the taxpayers and farmers of South Bark River be left snow bound for two or three days when all the others were open but the side roads. This is a mail route, a school bus route and a milk route. There was a two mile stretch of road that has been impassable since Monday. The farmers will be forced to haul their milk out two or three miles to the milk truck, the school bus could not make this road so the children on this road must miss school. The mail man must skip this piece of road and there were two cases of sickness. No doctor could get to or the sick one could not be taken out to a doctor. This piece of road is on 535 on mail route R 1 Bark River so why should this be left in that condition. What are we paying taxes for? There are about 20 families in this section that say this is the truth and we cannot see why this has been left in that condition. Then a big piece in the paper tells how all the roads are in such a fine condition. We would like to know how they can tie up the taxpayers money and families as well. We are paying taxes for the upkeep of the roads and then get a dirty deal like this.

Now if you can explain this or give any reason lets see it in the morning Press. We taxpayers have been greatly mistreated by the road commission.

Signed,
The Taxpayers of So. Bark River.

The purpose of the dramatics club is a promote better assemblies at the high school. At meetings, short plays are presented by various club members. Bill Harvey is president, and Gerd Nilsen is secretary of the club.

"Our boy

a prisoner of war

. . . and the far-reaching arm of the RED CROSS brought him help"

THERE isn't very much you can do when you hear your boy is in a prison camp. Personal parcels are restricted, mail from him is limited. Like him, you must wait, endlessly, patiently, until the long war is over.

Yet you do have one consolation. The far-reaching arm of the Red Cross is world-wide. It sees that supplementary food parcels regularly reach our prisoners wherever possible. It brings extra clothing, cigarettes and medicines to the lonely boys "out there." It relays messages in emergencies to and from these men and their anxious families.

This is all part of the stupendous job the Red Cross is doing for our fighting men all over the world . . . and for their families at home. And it cannot be done without the support of the American people. Without your help the Red Cross could not continue to collect life-saving blood for the desperately wounded . . . to send essential supplies to the prisoners of war . . . or to give the thousand and one other friendly services that help make a soldier's life a little easier.

No matter what turn the war takes, the need is still great. So won't you double . . . yes, triple your Red Cross contributions of previous years? Remember, our valiant Soldiers, Sailors and Marines are fighting and giving their lives for America . . . and for you. Won't you give a few extra dollars for them?

Keep your RED CROSS at his side

Four Year Terms?

UNDOUBTEDLY there's more than just a little politics back of the proposal to elect both state and county officials in Michigan for four year terms beginning in 1946. Such a proposal passed the state senate on Thursday, applied to county officers, but its application to state officials ran into a political snarl that resulted in postponement until next Tuesday.

An overwhelming Republican majority in the state legislature makes no secret of the fact that the GOP in Michigan will desire to take advantage of what ever party favors may accrue from electing state and county officers for the longer proposed terms in "off year" elections.

Political experience in Michigan is that not since the first Roosevelt landslide, has the Republican party in Michigan lost an "off year" election. With the GOP again in control of both branches of the state legislature, if the people of Michigan are going to be permitted to vote on longer terms for their state and county officials, those state and county elections will be held in "off" years and not in presidential election years.

Accumulating over the years there has been some sentiment developed for longer elective terms for state and county officers. It is acknowledged that a newly elected state administration, in a two year term, hardly has itself installed in office than it is necessary to undertake a campaign for reelection. Under a two year term plan it is impossible for any administration to undertake any long range state planning, with any degree of certainty that it will be permitted to carry those plans into execution. In the main those facts are also true as applied the county officers.

Such a change in the laws of Michigan can only be accomplished through an amendment to the state constitution. Such an amendment can be initiated through legislative action, such as is now undertaken. But you can put it down in the book that if the move is approved by the people, the first state election, under the new plan, will be held in 1946 and every four years, thereafter.

Yanks Cross Rhine

THE First Army's crossing of the historic Rhine against surprisingly light resistance gives a hint that Hitler's Fortress Europe has been reduced to a mere shell and that now victory may come sooner than was apparent just a few weeks ago.

Of course, it is always dangerous to predict that a highly militarized nation like Germany is close to defeat. The Nazis have shown remarkable ability in staging comebacks in the past, but still if they were to make a desperate last stand they should have attempted it at the Rhine, which had not been crossed by a foreign enemy since Napoleon's time. Instead, the Americans have established a firm beachhead and are fanning out to take military objectives without facing the usual stubborn Nazi opposition.

The crossing of the Rhine is hailed as a military triumph as great as the D-day landings on the strongly-fortified Normandy coast. There may be a good reason why Propaganda Minister Goebbels predicted this week that the war will come to a sudden end.

Our recent triumphs should not be an excuse for letting down of our home front war efforts. Just to give the enemy a good lacing before he hollers "Uncle," let's produce more war materials, buy more war bonds and throw extra dollars into the Red Cross fund to cheer the boys who have crossed the Rhine.

Apparently Satisfied

WORK done by prisoners of war in the Upper Peninsula woods and elsewhere in the Lake States region apparently has been more or less satisfactory to the army authorities. Anyway, the Army Service Forces of the Sixth Service Command saw fit to issue a comprehensive release this week on the POW program.

According to Col. George H. Cushman, post commander of the base prisoner of war camp at Fort Sheridan, the eight branch camps in the area have performed work which has brought $210,722.59 into the United States Treasury from Jan. 1 through Feb. 24.

Five of the branch camps are in the Upper Peninsula near Raco, Munising, Mass and Sidnaw, where six lumber and paper companies paid $82,654.06 into the treasury since Jan. 1 for prisoner of war labor. In return, the German captives cut 369,503 pulpwood sticks, 966 cords of chemical wood, 34,945 ties and 156,300 cedar posts, plus additional woods work.

All these forest products are vital to the successful prosecution of our war against Germany and Japan. The German prisoners of war know this, of course, and those who are still loyal to the Nazi cause continue to get by with the least amount of work possible. Some still believe in Hitler's promise of eventual victory, but they likely will be changing their minds and their attitude toward their work as the Allies get closer to victory in Germany.

Different Picture

ESCANABA is displaying only casual interest in the efforts of certain downstate cities to induce the legislature to pass a law that would provide state aid for financially stricken communities.

Although Escanaba has a low property valuation for tax purposes for a city of its size, this city has been sitting pretty financially. Our municipally-owned utilities, their efficiency greatly increased in recent years, have been yielding sizable revenues, from which the city administration has realized surpluses that have been set aside for postwar public works to provide employment to returning veterans.

While here, City Manager George E. Bean made an early start on postwar planning, and Escanaba was one of the first to submit its plans to the Michigan Planning commission. When Mr. Bean went down to Pontiac, he found an entirely different picture.

Pontiac had no postwar plans and no surplus funds in its treasury to finance new construction after the war. Pontiac, consequently, is looking to Lansing for financial assistance. In fact, its city councilmen have gone to the capital to present their pleas.

The Pontiac Press, in an editorial, expresses confidence that state aid will be forthcoming, and adds that if this occurs the city will be "in a better position to do some of the things that need to be done."

"There is no dearth of needs and a long list of postwar projects has been drawn up," the Pontiac Press editorial continues. "George E. Bean, Pontiac's new city manager, now is engaged in surveying the situation. He has already made some suggestions to the city commission.

"The various governmental units will be able to aid in providing employment during the changeover period in industry from war to peacetime production if they have plans ready for public works construction, and the finances to sign contracts promptly once building materials are available. Because of the far reaching importance of this phase of the situation in the overall economic picture, Pontiac citizens are awaiting word from Lansing with great interest, for unless aid is forthcoming from Lansing there will be little cash available in Pontiac for such projects."

In spite of a genuine determination to keep out of the quarrels of Europe, the United States has never been able to stay out of a world war. The world gets smaller all the time.—British Ambassador Lord Halifax.

Approach of spring reminds us that no matter how much fun we poke at the onion, it always comes back strong.

Gracie Allen Says.

I thought you folks in other parts of the country might be interested in knowing what our California legislature is in heated debate over right now.

Yalta, no; taxes, no. Post-war security, no.

They're selecting a poet laureate for the state. They want someone with the talent of a Whittier or a Longfellow, but who has a Californian's outlook. I can just imagine what Whittier might have written had he been a dyed-in-the-wool Californian.

"Blessings on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy with cheeck of tan.
Where did you get the sun tan, pray?
Why sir, in Californ-i-ay."

And Longfellow would probably come up with something like this:

"By the shore of Santa Monica,
By the sparkling sea water,
Stand the wigwams of the movie stars,
Guides will show you for a quarter."

K.I.'S WANT TO KNOW

It is encouraging to note a quickening interest in word usage and pronunciation among our servicemen, large numbers of whom write to this modest department from almost every corner of the earth. They clamor for answers to word questions. They send for various educational pamphlets. They ask for the names of good textbooks. They are seeking self-improvement as they fight our war!

How do you like this comment from a soldier in the Philippines? "If you have a pamphlet on speech improvement, my buddies and I would appreciate a copy. You know we G.I.'s make a brave show by talking tough, like Shakespeare's soldier, 'Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard.' Of course we are tough physically—but that's about all. Several men in my outfit would like to organize a debating team. We think it will help us to offset the degenerating effect of tough military lingo on our speech. We'll be grateful for your suggestions."

Many a sailor has written to this effect: I have much idle time, especially when my ship is at sea. I'd like to improve my knowledge of English before I'm mustered out. I think it would help me to get a better job than the one I held in civilian life.

Still others are thinking of neglected opportunities in their prewar schooling, and are seeking ways of making up for squandered time.

Also, it comes to me from reliable sources that service men by the hundreds of thousands, many of them while actually in the front lines, are studying correspondence courses prepared for them by the government.

I believe this will be welcome news to those of you who may be fearful of the brutalizing effect of war on our fighting sons.

This war will not make them brutal, any more than their fathers were brutalized by the first World War. A sailor, writing to me from London, puts it in a nut-shell: "If history teaches anything, it is certainly that the best fighter is the man who doesn't believe in fighting, and who fights only when he must."

Mediterranean Allied Air Force Headquarters—You have to see the records of its accomplishments to understand the rule played by the Balkan air force in helping to liberate Balkan countries from Nazi rule. In volume, these accomplishments may not have been decisive, yet it is hard to see how our military success thus far in this theater could have been achieved without them.

Childs

This has been particularly true in Yugoslavia. From bases in Italy, flyers of the Balkan air force, under Air Vice Marshall Elliott, have landed transport planes with desperately needed supplies behind the lines in Yugoslavia. British, American, Greek and some Yugoslav pilots have faced great hazards to supply Marshal Tito's Partisans.

One of their chief accomplishments has been the evacuation to Italy of nearly 15,000 wounded Partisans. Because of the lack of even primitive transportation, Tito's forces often had to carry their wounded on stretchers over mountainous terrain. Under such conditions, six stretcher bearers were required for each of the wounded, and the mobility of the Partisan armies was often reduced to a point where massacre by the Germans seemed a certainty.

—DISASTER AVERTED—

Once, as the Germans were about to close in, Tito sent an urgent appeal for the evacuation of 900 wounded. The alternative was to leave them behind for certain torture and slaughter by the advancing Germans.

The story of how, within a few hours, a plan was worked out and transport planes were landed in daylight on improvised air trips is a dramatic illustration of the potentialities of air power. With more than 900 wounded men taken out of the German trap, the Partisans regained their mobility, the stretcher bearers took up arms, and disaster was once again averted.

Among nearly 15,000 persons rescued from inside Yugoslavia are more than 500 children. They had been living during the winter on a diet of wild garlic, snow and occasional bread.

Wounded and starving soldiers have been brought to British hospitals in Italy, and there they have been nursed back to health with the best possible medical care. Now the process is being reversed and several thousand soldiers have been flown back into Yugoslavia. Some, restored to health, have already returned to the front, where Tito is struggling with an acute shortage of fighting manpower.

Besides evacuating the wounded, the Balkan air force has flown in well over 7,000 tons of vital war material—ammunition, food, guns, clothing. Almost half of this volume was carried in planes flown by American crews.

—RECEIVE FINE TREATMENT—

There have been casualties in terrible weather and over snow-covered mountains, but many crew members have found their way out of enemy territory. Pilots I talked to in Yugoslavia told of the wonderful treatment given them by Peasants, who often risked their lives to hide our men. Everywhere the word "Americans" brought generous treatment, with families offering crewmen what little food they had.

Two fliers I talked to who had bailed out in Russian-held Hungary reported similar treatment by the Russians. One who had suffered injuries in his jump was given excellent care in a well-run hospital established in a former apartment building under the direction of a doctor brought from Moscow.

These fliers of all nationalities in the international Mediterranean command have flown into Yugoslavia several thousand tons of food, hundreds of tons of explosives, thousands of uniforms, light machine guns, anti-tank rifles, more than 250,000 grenades and a variety of other weapons.

This, of course, is not the sum total of the air to Yugoslavia. The bulk of shipments, particularly of food, have gone in by ship across the Adriatic. The volume of food sent in by sea is several times that flown in. But the important point about the air shipments is that they came off at critical moments and in remote mountain glens that could not possibly be reached in any other way. It is hard to imagine the sense of relief and elation when one hears friendly planes coming with supplies that will mean the difference between life and death.

Despite all that has been sent in, it is still only a fraction of the need. Again, it is hard to imagine the suffering of the Balkan peoples, especially in war-torn Yugoslavia. While food seemed fairly plentiful in Belgrade, some of the mountain provinces are said to be at starvation level.

It is the same story I have heard throughout Europe—lack of transportation. An air force such as that organized for the Balkan war can do emergency jobs, but it cannot fill the gap left by the destruction of rails, bridges and highways.

THE BLACK MARKET—Most people in this section of the nation are acquainted with the black market only by hearsay. They have read and heard of it. Perhaps they have come in contact with it without knowing a black market operator when they met him face to face in broad daylight.

Dunthan

At a meeting of O P A officials and farmers last Wednesday night in Escanaba city hall, one of the farmers stated definitely that "the black market is operating in the potato marketing business." While nothing more was made of that statement at the time, it can be presumed the farmer will be requested by OPA to supply further information. Or perhaps the man was just talking. He seemed in an argumentative mood.

There is no doubt that a black market in potatoes does exist elsewhere.

Down in the northern tier of counties in Lower Michigan the war food administration has placed in effect an order, effective March 1, stopping the sale of all potatoes in the area and requiring holders of potatoes in the area to first offer them to the government. A permit must be obtained from the federal agency and the spuds must be inspected before they may be sold or shipped.

* * *

MILITARY FIRST—H. H. Varney, Cleveland, regional agricultural economist for the OPA, pointed to the Lower Michigan situation as an example of the methods the government must use to curb black market activities.

"The needs of the military must come first," said Varney. "Where it is found that black market operations are, through illicit channels, stealing produce which is vital to our country in wartime, there must be rigid federal control to protect vitally necessary supplies."

* * *

$7 A BUSHEL—Perhaps some of you may remember the black market run on spuds two years ago, when cooking potatoes, offered as seed, sold as high as $5 to $7 per bushel, and ordinary table stock spuds disappeared from the market.

Now, however, the regulation governing the sale of seed potatoes make it extremely difficult to black market table stock tubers as seed as some operators did two years ago.

In Lower Michigan many legitimate operators feared their own business would be ruined unless the black market operations were halted. The dealers reported that black market operators were paying above ceiling prices for several weeks, and were threatening to force the honest shipper out of business.

* * *

THOSE CEILINGS—As Varney pointed out to the farmers attending the meeting here, the OPA has a double-barrelled obligation to them. For the farmer is both a producer and a consumer.

Therefore the farmer finds that a ceiling has been placed on the commodities he produces and sells, and at the same time the equipment and machinery which he must have to produce is rationed to him. Also, as a consumer, the farmer is likely to complain about the high cost of the things he must buy.

"The farmer has an enormous job to do, and the OPA has a job which must be done," Varney said. "We have made mistakes but the over-all record has been good. All that is needed is to cite conditions in the last war, when there was no price control, to prove the point I am trying to make."

VICIOUS CIRCLE — The hay shortage on many Upper Peninsula farms is critical. In the absence of price control on hay (ceilings are being worked out now) the price has zoomed upward until farmers are worried.

Proctor Maynard, Escanaba, OPA district economist, told the farmers that without price control on hay it has gone up to $35 a ton in some sections of the U. P., where previously the usual price was $20.

One of the farmers at the meeting reported paying as high as $36 a ton "for quack grass."

Maynard pointed out how the vicious circle works.

In Chippewa county, a hay producing section, growers do not want ceiling prices established on that commedity because it means more money for them. So the price goes up and up and by the time the hay is shipped out to New England and to Southern states the price is up to $70 a ton, including freight.

"So the price of milk goes up in those areas, resulting in higher living costs for labor and a demand by labor for higher wages. If the higher wages are granted the cost of the commodities they produce is increased — and the Chippewa county farmers have to pay a higher price for what they buy."

* * *

THE SHOE PINCHES — Not only that, Maynard reported, but with the shortage some hay is being imported into the U. P., and without price control they are "beginning to feel the shoe pinch."

* * *

GAS FOR FARMERS — There was considerable discussion among the farmers on the method of allocating non-highway gasoline. Not one of the farmers from four counties complained against not receiving enough gas for his needs —but several of them cited instances where non-highway gas was used by farmers or members of his family for trips in the family car.

. G. Wells, superintendent of the Chatham experimental station, offered a suggestion that there should be a differentjation between potato growers who follow better growing practices and those who do not. The potato grower who sprays oftener needs more gasoline—but he does produce far more spuds per acre.

Gas panels of county rationing boards should take heed when allocating non-highway gasoline to farmers.

The Lyons Den

NEW YORK—Mrs. Irving Berlin was a guest at the White House last week. There she wrote some letters to children who would be thrilled at receiving letters on Whitehouse stationery. One of these letters was to a boy whose parents were Republicans. "I am writing this," was Mrs. Berlin's message to him, "from the place where one of the three great Presidents now lives. I am enclosing photographs of the other two." . . There were no picture-postcards of Washington or Lincoln in the White House. Mrs. Berlin found a suitable, though more expensive, substitute. She enclosed with this letter one $5 bill and one $1 bill.

JUST BEFORE the turn of events brought Winston Churchill back to politics, he wrote a screen play for a movie to be called "Jubilee." It was a documentary film, comparing the differences between Britain's King and the dictators of the countries with which Britain soon would be at war . . . It showed the cheering mobs in the public squares of Rome and Berlin. There were hundreds of thousands in each of those crowds, all cheering their dictators. King George was shown making a speech before a meager few . . . The last scenes then showed Hitler and Mussolini, still being cheered, but surrounded by a host of armed bodyguards. This was followed by a scene of King George, riding his horse through the park, all alone.

"What does that mean?" Judge Arnold was asked . . . "That means," he explained, "they'll deliver the mail if they can."

A NUMBER OF exhibitors have suggested to Alex Korda that he reissue his H. G. Wells movie, "Things To Come." Except for the costumes, most of its prophecies have come true. The picture began with an undeclared war, by the bombing of cities on Christmas, 1939. When Korda and Wells decided to show a bombing scene with 300 planes flying over the cliffs of Dover, the audiences at the London premiere laughed loudly at this fantastic prophecy . . . During the filming, Korda suggested that the author change "self-immolation" to "suicide." "People won't understand what 'self-immolation' means," said Korda . . . 'They will," Wells insisted. Korda made the test, by asking every studio employee to define "self-immolation." When no one could define it, Korda said, "See? I win." . . . Wells pointed to his contract, which provided that the script couldn't be altered without his consent, and said, "No. I win."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. R. S. Allen now on active service)

Washington—The manner in which the Nazis have been treating American prisoners recalls an experience I had with German prisoners last summer.

We were cutting corn to fill the silo. It was late in the season, labor was almost non-existent, and the farm bureau had efficiently arranged with Camp Meade, Maryland, for 100 German prisoners to work in batches of ten on farms in the country, so I obtained ten prisoners to help cut the corn and fill the silo.

Pearson

They arrived by truck from Camp Meade, accompanied by one U. S. soldier as guard, stowed their lunches in the shade and went to work. They worked very well, they required little direction, were given few orders, and didn't loaf on the job.

The guard paid little attention to them, explaining that they worked better if they felt they were not being guarded. He remained around the barn and the silo, while most of the prisoners worked half a mile away in the cornfield. He said that few prisoners had run away, and if they did escape they had no place to go and were easily apprehended.

Having had 100 Bulgar prisoners under me in Serbia just after the last war, I did not disagree with him. I had left Bulgar prisoners in groups of five or six in isolated mountain spots where they were rebuilding Serbian houses, completely unguarded except for one thing. At night the Serbian widows collected the prisoners' shoes and slept on them. Few ran away and they were always caught.

At noon the ten German prisoners sat under a tree, ate their lunch and sang songs. The guard did not go near them After one hour they went back to work At the end of the day I paid the government 30 cents an hour for each prisoners, or $3 an hour for the ten. The prisoners in turn received 30 cents a day, the amount set by the Geneva convention The government kept the rest to pay for hauling, feeding and handling prisoners

The whole thing worked out well, so well that a week later when the farm bureau could spare additional prisoners I had ten more.

But this time it was different. The first lot had been captured in Normandy, the second lot had been taken in North Africa. They were a part of Rommel's Arika korps. I don't know what the difference is between Nazi prisoners taken in Africa and those taken in France, unless it was that Rommel's troops were more Nazified, but I do know that the second group was insolent, lazy, impossible to manage and more trouble than they were worth.

They were given exactly the same job as the other prisoners, but they did about half as much work. Two or three insisted on sitting in the shade whenever they felt like it. When I called this to the attention of the guard he seemed help less. He said that if he ordered them around it would be worse.

The guard, incidentally, had hung his rifle on the truck which my wife was driving between the cornfield and the silo, and eventually it bounced off and fell on the ground. A prisoner picked it up, looked to see if it were loaded (it wasn't) and threw it back on the truck.

At noon hour they quit early and wouldn't go back to work until they felt like it, which was ten minutes late. They complained that some apples we gave them were wormy. The Geneva convention, they said, paid them 80 cents a day, and they were going to give us 80 cents worth of work.

—IMPOTENT U. S. GUARD—

Toward the end of the day they again quit early. The guard had no control over them and didn't really try to exercise any. When I asked him to get the names of those who had spent part of the afternoon sitting in the shade, he tried, but they refused to give their names.

I wrote a report to the Provost Marshal's office at Camp Meade, and they investigated the matter, but in the end they they acted as if it were my fault. They white-washed the prisoners, did not even put them on bread and water.

Maryland farmers around me suggested that I not do anything more about the matter for fear the army would take the prisoners away from the country where they were badly needed. In view of the manpower shortage on all the farms I said nothing.

But today as I hear eye-witness accounts of the manner in which the Nazis have shot down companies of American prisoners in cold blood, and how American prisoners have been woefully under-nourished and mistreated, I confess that my blood boils. I wonder if there isn't something radically wrong with the Provost Marshal and his whole handling of German prisoners.

Camp Fire Girls Observe Birthday Week, Have Party

Making plans for work at the city recreation center, organizing a choir and looking forward to an ice-skating party at the indoor rink tonight are several of the activities scheduled for Escanaba Camp Fire Girls as they enter the week which is known nationally as their "Birthday Week."

Tonight's skating party at the indoor rink will begin at 7 o'clock. Camp Fire Girls in the seventh grade and up, members of the Horizon Club and members of the Bay de Noc council are invited. Several guardians will also attend the party. Each girl will pay her own admission to the rink and will bring her own lunch, but hot cocoa will be furnished by the council.

"Hi, Neighbor" is the theme of Camp Fire Birthday Week, and the girls have found helpful neighbors in the persons of Mrs. Fred LaChapell who is going to work with various groups who wish to take advantage of the articles being made at the recreation center, and Mrs. Jack Bartel, Jr., who is going to direct their choir. From the group of 75 who indicated interest, about 20 will be included in the choir.

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands, (Delayed)—In my long career with the United States Army, I've made a hobby of cultivating the very best people in it. And for some strange reason the very best people usually turn out to work in the kitchen. Isn't that odd?

Pyle

My latest acquisitions are a Mutt and Jeff team known as Micky and Bill. They serve the food in our mess hall. They have to work like dogs and they dash around in such intent haste that you think they are mad at everybody all the time.

But they aren't. That's just a look of concentration on their faces. Whenever we give them time to relax, they're the best-natured pair you ever saw.

These two boys are Sgt. Thomas Bill, of St. Louis, and Cpl. Mickey Rovinsky, of Edwardsville, Pa. They're as different as day and night, but they work together like cogs in a gearwheel.

Sergeant Bill is tall and thin and white-skinned and has curly hair and a sensitive face, and he doesn't say much. Mickey is so short he could stand under Bill's arm, and his skin is dark. His eyes are almost shut and he talks all the time—and such talk.

Mickey is unquotable, because you couldn't possibly remember things the way he says them. His colloquialisms are not sectional, they're pure Rovinsky.

Mickey is outspoken about his likes and dislikes. He fusses back at the officers who ask for extra service, but they know Mickey and don't get sore about it. He's a sassy wise-cracking little heart-of-gold fellow. He never laughs, but he's pretty happy. He wears his cap turned up in front, which gives him a cocky air.

* * *

The boys' special favorite among all the fliers is my friend Capt. Bill Gifford. He's always giving them things, and sits up and talks with them in the messhall after supper, and as a result they'd stay up all night for him if he merely suggested it.

By good fortune, I fell in with this trio, and every night Giff and I would stay away from supper until everybody else had finished and the two boys had their tables all cleaned up and set for breakfast.

Then we'd wander over through the dark and the four of us would have a banquet—such as steak and French fried potatoes. The boys would cook it and then we'd all sit down and eat, and the talk would start to fly.

The first Tokyo mission was a highlight in Mickey's life. The pilots are always tense the night before a mission, and Mickey has his troubles.

"They took off six times for Tokyo," Mickey says. "I mean they was scheduled to go every day for six days, and they'd all be short-tempered and wanting things just so at night, and then next morning the mission would be postponed.

"It was their first mission up there and they'd heard a rumor they was to be 1300 Jap fighters lined up across the sky just like a wall, and they was nervous and grumpy.

"Like Captain Gifford here, I can always tell when he's going the next day. He don't say much at supper like he usually does. He just wants that sharp attention and keep your mouth shut and leave him the hell alone.

"Well, them pilots was tense and worried and they didn't drink any beer or anything for five nights and then finally on the fifth night they was up half the night yellin' around, and then next morning they really did take off. Boy they didn't feel good either.

"It's a good thing they finally went or I was gonna mutiny. I got sick and tired of puttin' grub in them damned airplanes. I was gonna refuse the seventh time. I said I'd take a court-martial before I'd put grub in them planes a seventh time. But they went that time."

Then Captain Gifford took up. "You should have been here that morning. The mission was called so fast there wasn't time to warm up the engines a few at a time, so they ran them all up at once all over the field. This whole island shook from the vibration.

"When I took off I had to weave around through bulldozers and between jeeps and across cane patches and I kept thinking about those 1300 fighters we'd heard about. I sure was put out about ever getting into this business in the first place. But it turned out all right."

"When Captain Gifford gets back," Mickey went on, "he's a changed man. He's still full of nerves but he wants to talk and he wants me to keep the beer comin' out of the icebox."

Sergeant Bill sits and listens and smiles and enjoys it and says almost nothing. He and Mickey are both married men, although they're only 24 and 23 respectively.

Bill was a truck driver and Mickey a machinist before the war. Sergeant Bill has one baby and Mickey has two. Mickey places the birthdate of his latest child by remembering it was born the night the Nips came and bombed the B-29 base the first time.

The boys have to get up at 5 a. m. and their work isn't finished till about 9 at night. They don't even get to go to the movies, for they don't get through work in time. But they don't seem to care. They feel they're pretty lucky to have things as nice as they are.

The day I was to leave they gave me what Mickey called my "farewell breakfast"—three fried eggs! There's nothing in this army like knowing the very best people.

Tells of Christmas Party Held for 40 French Children

A description of a serviceman's dinner in France is contained in a letter from Cpl. Ivor Willcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Willcock, Manistique, to J. A. LaFramboise, city. The letter, dated Dec. 28, was received this week.

It follows:

"I spent a very quiet but enjoyable Christmas. Despite weather conditions and surroundings, I think all the boys did their best to enter into the proper Christmas spirit. After a really palatable Christmas dinner consisting of turkey, apple pie, cranberry sauce and all the other things that make up a good Christmas dinner, the boys gave a party for the French children in the surrounding neighborhood. I would estimate that approximately 40 children attended the party. It made us happy just to see all those children happy with their candy, gum and other sweets. After the party we took some sweets to an elderly French woman who is seriously ill. She was so happy that she actually cried. She told us that the Americans spoil the French people. She was also happy to see the Americans as she had just received news that one of her sons that had been forced to fight for the Germans had landed safe and sound in a prisoner of war camp in the United States. After supper the boys themselves had a party. Although it was minus the type of celebrating they have been used to in the past, I think each and every one of them had a good time. And thus our Christmas season was ended. * * *

"My time is taken up mostly with my work. Lately I have had to make a few business trips to Paris and also to Reims. Of course on the Paris trips, I combined business with pleasure and saw the worthwhile sights. It is a beautiful city and the time passed while there is time well spent. I don't go into detail about the sights but no book or movie can do full justice to them."

Mr. and Mrs. J. DeVroye Honored By Friends On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John B. DeVroye, of Hiawatha township, were guests of honor at an informal, but very pleasant gathering of friends and neighbors at the Maple Grove club rooms at the school near their home, last Tuesday evening, the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary.

About eighty people were present at the gathering where a short program was held followed by lunch and a general session of visiting.

Agner Dehlin, supervisor of Hiawatha township, took charge of the program which consisted of talks by Rev. Meldon Crawford, Fred Heltman and Mr. and Mrs. DeVroye. There was also community singing, led by Mr. Heltman. On behalf of the Methodist Ladies' Service club, of which Mrs. DeVroye was a member, Rev. Crawford presented her with a beautiful bouquet of snapdragons and jonquils. Also presented to the couple by the Goodwill club and friends was a crisp new fifty dollar bill.

Occupying a place of honor at the luncheon table was a huge three-tier wedding cake, decorated and frosted specially for the occasion. Golden candle sticks and a golden tea service added to the decorative scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. DeVroye were married in Manistique on March 6, 1895. For a few years they lived in the city where they conducted a boarding house. They moved out on to their present farm home about 45 years ago.

Their two daughters, Mrs. Ed Donaldson, of Detroit, and Mrs. Albert Davidson, of Cooks, were among the guests present.

Miss Floella Lee Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hastings of this city, became the bride of Clyde Vernon Scoggins of Detroit in a candle-light ceremony which took place February 17 in the Metropolitan Methodist church of Detroit with Rev. Simpson officiating.

The attendants were Vernon Curtis and Virginia Yeurgens.

The bride wore a green-mist suit with brown accessories and the bridesmaid wore light blue with black accessories.

A wedding supper was served later.

The couple are making their home in Detroit where they are both employed in an electrical plant.

Out-of-town relatives were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hastings.

Misses Leocadia Olesak and Lorraine Barker, former residents of this city, now employed in Detroit, were also present.

She was a member of St. Francis de Sales Catholic church and of St. Anne's society. Charitable and religious, much of her time in the last few years of her life had been devoted to prayers on behalf of the boys in the service of their country. A grandson, Mason Rhodes, is in the army.

OFFERS RATE REDUCTION

Ishpeming—The Ishpeming city council last night accepted a proposal, submitted by the Michigan Gas and Electric company, for reducing residential power rates the next three years.

In return for this, the city agrees to withdraw its case, now pending before the Michigan public service commission, asking for a hearing into the current rate structure. The new rates are effective the month succeeding the withdrawal, and probably will be reflected in April billings.

CAR CRASHES INTO FREIGHT

Lansing Attorney Injured In Smashup Thursday Night

D. A. O'Brien, of East Lansing, a state highway department attorney, narrowly escaped death about midnight Thursday when his car crashed into a train of cars being switched on the Ann Arbor railroad tracks crossing Highway No. 2 near the Manistique Tool and Die company.

The car is a total wreck and O'Brien, who was alone, received several bruises and cuts about his face and chest, none of which were serious.

He was on his way to St. Ignace from some western point and claims that in the darkness he was unaware of danger until it was too late to avoid a crash. He claims that no watchman was present to warn of the train's presence. Trainmen, however, dispute this version, stating that a switchman was standing on the road and that he had a climb up on the side of the box car to avoid being hit. The auto crashed into the car he climbed. According to railway employes the train was moving slowly and had gone about a car length when the crash occurred. O'Brien, according to a rail road official, admitted that he was driving 50 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

Employes of the local cheese factory came along in a truck a moment later and helped O'Brien out of the car, notified the police and took the injured man to the Crosby hotel, where Dr. N. L. Lindquist was summoned and administered first aid.

Railway crossings in this area have been the scene of several serious collisions of trains and motor cars and there has been considerable agitation for the installation of warning systems at these places. The city council recently conferred with railroad companies on the matter, but no assurance has come that anything will be done until after the war.

POSTHUMOUS AWARD GIVEN

Lt. Bergman, Killed In Action, Honored By Nation

A silver star medal has been awarded posthumously to Second Lieutenant Carl F. Bergman, Route 1, Manistique.

Lieutenant Bergman was killed in action in France on August 5, and the citation was recently presented to the young man's wife.

The citation states, "I have the honor to inform you that by direction of the president, the silver star has been awarded posthumously to your husband, Second Lieutenant Carl F. Bergman, Cavalry . . ., for gallantry in action on August 5, 1944."

The decoration will be forwarded to the commanding general of the Second Service Command at Governors Island, N. Y., who will select an officer to make the presentation to Mrs. Bergman. The officer selected will communicate with her beforehand.

After the American Revolution, Washington—reputed to be one of the richest men in the country—had to borrow 600 pounds for his journey to New York to assume the office of President.

Cagers Of Other Days To Perform

Basketball stars of other days will perform at a game to be played Saturday evening at the old gym between picked teams from Garden and Manistique and prospects are good for a merry old setto.

A game between the two quints was recently played in Garden and Garden won by a score of 36 to 32. Rich Berger of the locals scored 22 of the points made by his team and Ray Brandette accounted for 19 points on his team. Saturday's game will likely center about these two players.

There will be a preliminary game between the junior and senior class members. The main event is called for 8 o'clock. William Cook will referee both games.

CLOTHES DRIVE IS ORGANIZED

R. G. Hentschell Named Chairman Of Local Effort

A tentative organization to conduct a clothing drive to cooperate with the national movement to furnish clothing for residents of war torn areas, was made at a meeting held at the city hall Wednesdaye vening.

The meeting was presided over by Mayor Walter Burns with Alex Robertson serving as secretary pro tem.

Ira Crawford spoke briefly, explaining the movement which has for its objective the gathering of 100 million tons of good used clothing for the destitute of war torn lands. R. G. Hentschell also spoke briefly urging an active campaign in the community.

Mr. Hentschell was appointed chairman and will serve as soon as his appointment is confirmed by national headquarters.

The clothing pickup is scheduled to start about April 1 and will continue throughout April.

Local Woman Featured As "Courtesy Gal"

A Miami, Florida, daily, in a recent issue featured a Manistique woman as the "Courteous Gal," rating her as the most courteous employe among the many army and navy service clubs in that area.

The Young woman is Mrs. Eileen Cousineau, nee Kasbohm, whose husband is in the service, now stationed in England.

Mrs. Cousineau was chosen for the honor because of her prompt, efficient and courteous service while on duty at the service club fountain.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kasbohm, Route 1, Manistique.

Mrs. Cousineau, at the fountain, smiling her best, features the article.

LEGION TO HAVE NEW HOME

Votes To Purchase Walnut Street Property

Manistique Legionnaires are soon to have a new home.

At the regular meeting of the organization, held Thursday evening, that body acted favorably on the report of the building committee and voted to purchase a building on Walnut street near the intersection of Pearl street.

The building, known as the Johnson Tavern property, is of solid brick construction with full basement and heated with furnace. The building is in A1 condition throughout and members are enthusiastic over what may be done with it.

The building is 24 by 75 feet and on a lot 32 by 99 feet.

A fund to finance the project has been accumulating ever since the Legion Community building on Maple street was destroyed by fire two and one-half years ago.

Considerable remodeling, it is understood, will be required to put the building in shape for club purposes. These details, however, have not as yet been threshed out.

For the past two years the Legion and Auxiliary have been holding their meetings in the Knights of Columbus hall.

The building will be open for inspection Sunday afternoon and Legionnaires and Auxiliary members are urged to visit it during that time to acquaint themselves with the general plan of the building and thus be able, at a later date, to make suggestions for its remodeling.

TRENARY AND NAHMA CLASH

Teams Meet Tonight At Rapid River For Class E Title

Nahma and Trenary will battle for the Class E district championship at Rapid River tonight, as a result of victories in semi-final games last night. Trenary moved into the finals by eliminating Cooks, 41 to 29, and Nahma erased Perkins, 26 to 22, in a more hotly contested battle. The Class E finals will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The Cooks-Trenary engagement was a close battle until the final quarter when Trenary spurted to safeguard a six point lead that it held at the three-quarter post. Trenary outscored Cooks, 11 to 5, in the final period to win handily.

Scoring for both teams was well divided, but Latvala of Trenary was the individual high point scorer with 11 points.

The Nahma-Perkins battle was a ding-dong affair from start to finish with the lead changing several times. Perkins led at the intermission, 13 to 11, but Nahma went on a scoring bender in the third period and regained the advantage, 22 to 20. Both teams played cautiously in the final period, with Nahma scoring four points and Perkins only two.

This game was a battle between individual scoring aces, with Camps of Nahma winning the honors from Van Damme of Perkins, 15 to 13. Both players fouled out before the final horn.

Spartan Pitchers Record Progress By Novel System

East Lansing, March 9 (AP) — Michigan State's baseball candidates for pitching positions train on a percentage basis which enables them to see on paper how their control of curve, fast and slow balls compares with the standard set for varsity competition by John Kobs, Spartan baseball coach.

Under Kobs' system, each pitcher throws a certain number of balls for record at each practice session. Simulating playing conditions the pitcher tosses to a batter who tries for a hit. The catcher is told what type of pitch to call for by an umpire who records the resulting pitch, whether it was over the plate or fast or slow enough. When the pitcher is through, results are tabulated.

Kobs says the system frees him to instruct players in other positions and gives potential pitchers something definite on which to judge their progress.

IRON MOUNTAIN LICKS FLIVVERS

Championship Game Will Be Played At 8:15 Tonight

The Eskymos moved into the championship round of the Class B district tournament at Iron Mountain last night, defeating Menominee, 44 to 32. Tonight the Escanaba team will meet Iron Mountain at 8:15 p. m. at the Iron Mountain gymnasium for the district title, the Mountaineers, tournament favorites advancing at the expense of their neighbors, Kingsford, 48 to 41.

In its first defense of its Class B upper peninsula championship won last March at Ishpeming, the Escanaba team played smart, heads up basketball in eliminating Menominee last night. In marked contrast to the Escanaba-Menominee game played at Menominee only three weeks ago, which the Eskymos won by two points, the game last night between the two teams was an all-Escanaba affair after the torrid opening quarter, which ended with Escanaba leading, 15 to 12.

The pace slackened somewhat in the second period, but the Eskymos took the opportunity to lengthen their advantage to 25 to 16. Any Maroon hopes of victory ceased to exist in the third period when Escanaba crammed another 10 points through the hoop while Menominee added only two to bring the third quarter score to 35 to 18. Coach Ruwitch lads coasted in from there, even though they were outscored 14 to 9 in the last frame.

Mountaineers Breeze In

Ohman and Dufour were the big scoring guns for Escanaba, the former getting 18 points while Dufour contributed 11. Brink scored 17 points for Menominee.

Despite the apparent closeness of the score, Iron Mountain rode to a rather easy victory over Kingsford. The Mountaineers ran up a 17-7 lead in the opening quarter and were purring along at a 28-9 clip at the half-way mark. The Kingsford team rallied in the final two periods, during much of which the Iron Mountain reserves were in the lineup, but the Flivvers never came within overtaking distance until there was insufficient time remaining to stage a winning rally.

The championship game tonight promises to be a closely fought battle, with the tournament favorites, Iron Mountain, facing plenty of trouble from the rapidly developed Eskymos. Iron Mountain defeated Escanaba twice during the regular season, the last time only by three points.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

An unidentified baseball player, now an army sergeant at Miami, Florida, contends that the majors' waiver rule, which was originally designed to protect a player in the big leagues, actually works in reverse and all because a major league club can withdraw the name of a player it placed on the waiver list, if the club desires to do so. A case in point is that of Lou Novikoff, now regarded as baseball's biggest bust. Novikoff recently was sold by the Chicubs to Los Angeles in the Pacific league after all major league clubs had waived on the mad Russian.

* * *

The New York Giants have indicated that they would have been willing to gamble that Novikoff would make a big league comeback and presumably other major league clubs felt the same way. None moved to claim Novikoff at the waiver price, however, so the Cubs sold him to Los Angeles which, of course, is a minor league possession of the Chicago North Siders. The president of the Giants Horace Stoneham, when asked why he didn't claim Novikoff in view of the acute player shortage replied that the Cubs would have withdrawn waivers on Novikoff if any major league club tried to claim the mad Russian.

* * *

The Novikoff deal isn't the first of this kind. Many players have been waived out of the big leagues, even though some of the 16 big league clubs would have liked to put in claims. Presumably the major league bosses use the waiver rule to suit their convenience and not to protect the welfare and best interests of the players involved. The answer to the problem, of course, is that suggested by the army sergeant, who brought the point up in the first place. He suggests a revision of the rule that would prohibit a team from withdrawing a player from the waiver list.

* * *

If baseball leaders are really going to be sincere about the waiver rule and permit the rule to accomplish the purpose for which it was originally drawn, there should be no objection to the provision prohibiting a team from withdrawing a player from the waiver list. After all, if a team puts a player on the waiver list, why should that club owner play "Indian" and withdraw the player as soon as some other club puts in a claim? The waiver rule really doesn't mean a thing if it is going to be by-passed as simply as it is being done today. The army sergeant really has something in his complaint against the current policy of the major league owners.

* * *

Hit and Miss—Mel Ott hopes to reach his long sought goal of 500 home runs in 20 years of major league baseball this year... He now has 489 round trippers... The Yankees office probably will be moved to Radio City or the Empire State building... The estate of the late M. K. Landis, baseball czar, has been estimated at $150,000... Cal Hubbard, baseball umpire and former pro grid star... will go overseas soon to conduct coaching clinics and athletic programs under the direction of the Army's special service division.

VULCAN, FELCH REACH FINALS

Powers And Rock Beaten In Semi-Final Games At Rapid River

Felch and Vulcan, two Dickinson county teams, moved into the finals of the Class D district basketball tournament at Rapid River last night, Felch eliminating Powers, 57 to 41, while Vulcan defeated the Rock Little Giants, 35 to 24. Felch and Vulcan will meet at nine o'clock tonight at Rapid River for the Class D championship game.

Felch eliminated Powers by setting a blistering pace that the Powers team was unable to match after the first half. Although Powers trailed only by a 27-25 count at the intermission, they were unable to match strides with the high-scoring Felch team in the third and fourth frames and were snowed under by the fury of the Felch attack in the last two frames.

Mattson had a field day for Felch against the Powers defense, looping in 11 field goals and three free throws for 25 points but he also gained able support from Anderson and R. Wickman, who contributed 13 and 11 points, respectively. Hanson led the Powers scoring with 12 points but the scoring was better divided among seven players on this team.

Vulcan defeated the Little Giants by virtue of two big scoring periods in the second half, after a relatively slow first half, which ended with Vulcan leading, 10 to 8. Vulcan outscored Rock 14 to 8 in the third frame and 11 to 8 in the final period. Alexander led the scoring for Vulcan with 14 points:

Curfew Ruling Irks Washington

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—The Regional Office of the War Manpower commission ruled today that the midnight curfew order does not apply to regularly-scheduled league bowling competition which starts prior to 10 p. m. Individual bowlers must stop at midnight, the office said.

In Washington, WMC officials expressed surprise at the ruling and said it was in conflict with national policy on enforcement of the curfew.

TROJANS BOW TO STEPHENSON

Braves Beaten, 46 To 32, By Norway In Class C Tourney

Both of the Delta county Class C teams were eliminated at the district Class C tournament at Stephenson last night, Gladstone losing to Norway, 46 to 32, while Stephenson drubbed St. Joseph of Escanaba, 38 to 26. Norway and Stephenson will play tonight at 8:30 o'clock for the district title.

Gladstone made a valiant but futile fight against the towering Vikings of Norway, but the Braves fell off the pace in the last quarter and finally were snowed under.

The game appeared to be developing into a rout in the second quarter and the Vikings led at the intermission, 29 to 16. The Braves rallied vigorously in the third quarter and were trailing only 35-28 at this point, but they had shot their bolt and the Vikings went on to a relatively easy victory, with Hallgren leading the way with 19 points.

The St. Joseph Trojans, twice conquerers of Stephenson, were off form, missing numerous scoring opportunities. The Trojans trailed only by a 12-10 score at the half, but the Eagles drew a full head of steam in the second half and extended their advantage in each of the last two periods. INDOOR TRACK MEET TONIGHT

Michigan And Illinois Favorites In Big 10 Event

BY JIMMY JORDAN

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—Michigan and Illinois, unofficial co-partners in a monopoly of Western Conference track championships, will tangle in a showdown for title honors in the 35th Big Ten indoor meet at the University of Chicago field house tomorrow.

The Wolverines have dominated the conference track picture almost completely in recent years. Illinois hasn't taken an indoor championship since 1928 but Michigan has outscored the Illini only 14 to 9 in titles won.

Michigan will be seeking its third straight crown and its tenth triumph in 12 seasons.

The Illini appear much better balanced than the Wolverines, whose strength lies mainly in the distance events where the famed "dead heat" twins, Bob and Ross Hume, are certain to pile up plenty of points.

The Hume brothers tied for first in the mile last year, while Bob strode off with the two-mile. They will be helped considerably tomorrow by Ross Willard and Charles Birdsall, a pair of capable two-milers.

Illinois has a returning champion in Bob Kelly, who is 880 titlist, and sure point-getters in Bob Phelps, outdoor Big Ten and NCAA pole-vault champion; Dave Nichols, outdoor conference and NCAA high hurdles champion; Capt. Marce Gonzalez, star quarter-miler; and freshman Bill Buster, George Walker and Henry Aihara.

The two-team scrap between Michigand Illinois probably will be complicated by Ohio State, Minnesota and Iowa. The Buckeyes have a returning champion in pole-vaulter John Schmidt, who won last season at 13 feet, 6 inches. Minnesota also has a defending titlist, Armin Baumann, who shared high jump honors last year with Bill Dale of Michigan.

MARKET STAYS ON DOWNGRADE

New York, March 9 (AP)—The stock market continued on the downward course today but, while declines ranged from 1 to 3 or more points, selling seemed to lack the urgency that accompanied the sharp Thursday relapse.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1.1 points at 60.3, on top of yesterday's slump of 1.2 which was the widest break in nearly 16 months. The retreat was broad, 1,013 issues registering. Of these, 837 were down against 176 up or unchanged. Transfers totalled 2,060,000 shares compared with 1,860,000 the day before. The final hour accounted for only 350,000.

RAILS UNDER PRESSURE

New York, March 9 (AP)—Railroad bonds were again under pressure in today's market but declines were generally smaller than in the bad break which shook the list in the final hour on Thursday.

Industrials and utilities were only slightly affected, although there were enough small losers in all departments to hold the averages in the minus column or at unchanged levels. Sales at $9,990,000 compared with $9,394,000 on Thursday.

Secondary rails again took the brunt of the selling. Cotton Belt refunding 5s gave up 3½ points at 77 and Frisco 5s of 1950 lost 4 1-8 at 53. Other substantial losers included Southern Pacific 4½s of '81, Southern Railway general 4s, Western Pacific 4½s, Pittsburgh & West. Va. 4½s, Northern Pacific 4½s, New Haven 3½s and 4s, New York Central 4½s, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s and Baltimore & Ohio stamped convertibles of 1960. St. Paul and Rock Island loans fared a little better, although they were mostly lower.

Katy 4½s and 5s posted gains while the adjustment 5s and 4s lost ground. Philadelphia & Reading Coal 6s advanced 5 points to 218. American Water Works 6s and Certain-teed 5½ were among others making limited progress. U. S. governments were about steady.

Foreign dollar bonds were quiet. Peru first 6s lost ground while Helsingfors 6½s advanced a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—An accumulation of selling orders caused grain futures markets to dip at the start today but the offerings were taken quickly and prices rallied sharply before renewed liquidation at mid-session erased part of the gains.

Cash wheat continued to sell at ceiling prices in leading markets and handlers reported no improvement in the freight car situation. Primary receipts of wheat today were 525,000 bushels compared with 2,068,000 bushels a year ago.

The corn market was unsettled, rallying after breaking nearly a cent. In the late trade prices again eased off. Cash handlers reported 135,000 bushels of the grain bought for deferred delivery.

At the finish wheat was 1-8 to 1¼ higher than yesterday's close, May $1.69 1-8 to $1.69¼. Corn was off ⅛ to 5-8, May $1.14¼. Oats were unchanged to ½ higher, May 66 1-8. Rye was 1-8 lower to 1 higher, May $1.13 to $1.13 1-8. Barley was off 1-8 to ½, May $1.10 7-8.

Reception Held For Garden Pastor

Garden—Rev. Fr. Sanford was guest of honor at a reception which was held by the members of his new parish, St. Johns, and its missions. This reception took place at the Community Building in Garden, Sunday evening Mar. 4.

Fred VanRemortal acted as chairman and displayed his usual sense of good will and humor.

The meeting opened with a Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, followed by a few remarks by the chairman. The choir then sang "How Do You Do Fr. Sanford."

Supt. F. G. Tebo extended a hearty welcome in behalf of St. John's parish; E. J. Deloria spoke for the Cooks delegation and Mr. Van Remortel represented the Fayette group. Fr. Sturbentz also addressed the audience. The musical program consisted of:

Down In the Valley, Choir.

Ave Maria, Patsy Guertin.

Let the Rest of the World Go By Mr. Van Remortel and Nancy LaSalle.

Bell Bottom Trousers, Quartet.

There's a Long, Long Trail, Patsy Guertin.

Sing, Smile and Pray, Choir.

Following the musical program Fr. Sanford addressed the meeting, after which the audience arose and offered a minute of silent prayer for the parishioners in service, followed by the singing of "America."

The meeting was brought to a close by all present lining up in single file for introducing by Roland Boudreau as they passed the speakers' table.

Fr. Sanford was appointed to replace Fr. McKevitt who was assigned to St. Ignace and who left here last Friday to assume his new duties.

Progress Reported In Red Cross Drive Throughout County

Encouraged by generous public response in almost every section of the cities and townships, Red Cross War Fund solicitors anticipate it will be possible for the county to attain its $37,900 quota, according to reports reaching city and township drive chairmen.

C. J. McCauley, acting chairman of the Wells township committee, reported that the campaign for funds is under way full force and that good progress is being made. Felix Johnson is drive chairman for the township.

Other solicitors for Wells townships are: Gerald Kenneally, Mrs. Ernest Boes, Ewald Nelson, Louis Dufour, John Greis, Clarence Sturdy, August Severinsen, Mrs. L. A. Winling, Harry Belanger and Lawrence Klug, Wells school superintendent.

In Escanaba many organizations and groups are making contributions to the 1945 Red Cross drive. Their contributions are being made to John Bartella, fraternal and civic chairman of the drive.

The Escanaba Volley Ball club, composed of local residents interested in the game, Thursday night voted to make a contribution of $10 from the club treasury. Officers of the club are John Peterson, president; Cliff Beaudin, Sr., and Arnold Johnson.

The employees of two Escanaba business places have made a 100 percent contribution to the 1945 Red Cross drive and also each employee is contributing a days pay.

Montgomery Ward was the first retail store to complete the employes solicitation, with each employee contributing a day's pay, and the Escanaba Daily Press editorial and business office staffs have done likewise. Both organizations are the first to report completing employee solicitations.

Other retail stores and business organizations are attempting to reach the same goal.

TWO SIDES TO EVERY STORY

Bark River, Michigan,
March 8, 1945.

Escanaba Daily Press
Escanaba, Michigan.
Dear Editor:

There is always two sides to every story and it would be very interesting to hear both. The Road Commission story we read in the paper every day, but we hear nothing from the workers.

This winter we had the best service we ever had and I take my hat off to them, the WORKERS. I always thought that the supervisors were the highest authority in the county but in the last few days I don't know what to think—I want to ask a question. "When a person is appointed Road Commissioner is it a "life time" job or can he be recalled? Just because the commissioner dislikes one person, all the people out in the county have to go through the hardships of blocked roads.

Democracy means brotherhood, but it seems not, to the Delta County Road Commission—they are the bosses. The Commission says they recognize the Union, why should they deny them a man to represent them. I don't understand.

IF IT WAS NOT FOR THE UNION THERE WOULD BE VERY LITTLE DEMOCRACY LEFT.

Carl Stenberg.

FISH CATCHES RATHER LIGHT

Ice Fishing Suspended At Fairport; Boats Leave Ports

Commercial fishermen are reporting very light catches in fishing through the ice for whitefish and herring in the Escanaba area.

During the past couple weeks, the Hansen & Jensen fish market has received about two hundred pounds of smelt. The largest receipts in any one day were 30 pounds. Although this is a small amount when compared to the days of the big runs, the receipts are considerably larger than last year's at this time. Fishermen express the belief that the silvery fish are making a slow but certain comeback.

The Michigan Commercial Fishermen's association will hold a meeting at Traverse City Monday and Tuesday. Among those planning to attend are: Roy Jensen, Escanaba; William Sellman, Manistique; August Anderson, Marquette; and Ray Adair, Munising.

Pvt. Lloyd Martin Of Grand Marais Is War Casualty

Grand Marais — Pvt. Lloyd W. Martin was seriously wounded in action on February 20, his mother, Mrs. Leo Doucette, of Grand Marais, has been advised by the war department. The message stated that Mrs. Doucette would be advised of his condition as further reports were received.

Pvt. Martin

Mrs. Doucette's oldest son, James, was killed in the Normandy invasion, and she has another son in the service, Pvt. William Forest, who is in France.

A letter from a service man from Munising to relatives here reads:

"I have visited James Martin's grave. It is in a small divisional cemetery on a high hill. The surrounding country side is the most attractive in Normandy. The name of the cemetery is Le Chene Gauerin; it is south of St. Lo. At this time next year the entire country side will be a green lawn. They are at present working on the grounds landscaping them." A photograph of the grave of James Martin was enclosed in the latter.

First Man Tosses Hat In Ring For Mayor Of Munising

Lowell Gibson Thursday afternoon literally "threw his hat in the ring" for the office of mayor of Munising when he took out his petition from the city clerk. With the deadline only eight days away for the filing of petitions, Gibson is the first one to signify his intentions to run for mayor. As yet incumbent Mayor Evered Lezotte has not taken out his petition but he has declared that he will again seek reelection for another three year term. There are of course the ever present rumors that this or that one is going to run and according to grapevine reports which of course aren't official several individuals are holding back for a few more days to see what the other fellow is going to do.

The office of mayor is usually a very hotly contested race, not on account of the "title" but in the appointments that are made through the department that the mayor heads mainly, department of peace which includes the chief of police and a staff of three officers, department of health, appointment of a health officer and department of safety, appointment of fire chief.

Other offices to be voted on in the non-partisan election to be held April 2, will be three supervisors to be elected from the city proper, one justice of the peace to fill the unexpired term of Richard E. O'Brien who resigned to run for prosecuting attorney last fall, and two constables to be duly elected.

In the townships there appears to be some hot competition for all offices, with both sides reported to have full tickets. In Munising township a "hot" contest seems likely for the office of clerk between Reynold Miron, incumbent, and Frank Stebbins, running on slips.

Au Train township also has two full tickets in the spring election with citizens from the three communities, Au Train, Forest Lake and Christmas location represented on both of the tickets making it appear to be a hotly contested election.

No New Records Set For Snowfall

The total snowfall up to March 1 as recorded by Albert Oas, U. S. cooperative weather observer, was 116.8 inches. Of course this isn't any new record but as the oldtimers say, "we had a good sleighing month."

For the month of February snowfall was recorded as 30.1 in. falling making a total of 2.71 in. of precipitation for the month. The greatest amount in one day was 11.7 in. on the 22nd which made 1.71 in. of precipitation.

The mean temperature for the month was 18.3 (which was very hard on the coal bin) with a high of 40 degrees on the 25th and 28th and a low of 10 below zero on the 17th.

A breakdown of the month as follows:

Precipitation—11 days.
Clear—6.
Party cloudy—7.
Cloudy—15.

Mr. Oas has also announced for the benefit of those who nearly froze up on the night of March 6 and morning of March 7 it was 16 below zero.

Diphtheria Shots Given In Munising

Due to the recent death in Marquette of a 12 year old boy from diphtheria, Dr. C. E. Lockwood of the Alger-Schoolcraft health department will be in his office in the Alger county courthouse at Munising on Tuesday March 13 at 11:00 a. m. to give booster shots for diphtheria prevention and vaccination for small pox, to any adults and to those children who missed the pre-school clinic in the schools last fall. There is no excuse for any person not taking advantage of these shots, administered free of charge by the Alger-Schoolcraft health department, that sometimes prevent an epidemic or death, it is pointed out.

"E" is the most frequently used small letter in English, "S" is the most frequently used capital letter.

Citation Of Honor For Sgt. Gib Byrns

The citation of honor, awarded posthumously to Sergeant Gilbert Byrns, who was killed in action on Leyte, in the Philippines December 10, has been received by his mother, Mrs. C. J. Byrns, South Fourteenth street.

The citation, signed by General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the U. S. Army Air Forces, commended Sgt. Byrns for his great devotion to duty and dedicated the Army Air Forces to fulfillment of the objectives for which Sgt. Byrns made the supreme sacrifice.
